It's funny you're championing Heard as this alleged victim when her story constantly changes to fit with her mood. Given how she's hanging with other men as though she's had no bad experiences at all. It's also interesting how her charges came up in the heart of #MeToo 🤪 hoaxes.

You do realise the same applies to the Texan bedshitter. Like that's all you have...he's a court certified 'wife beater'...so's she! If you actually read the court docs you'd see what a farce it was. Great to have Murdoch as a friend though I guess 👍

4) The general public – will be able to read, circulate, and discuss this judgment. Any finding of fact:
 that Heard admitted to assaulting Depp on numerous occasions, that she never acted in self-defence, that her admissions of assaulting Depp were held to be in contradiction of her sworn evidence and testimony, and that she had lied to the press, general public, and in sworn evidence, to having "donated all" her $7m settlement – have all been found, ruled upon, or affirmed by the Court of Appeal to be true. Furthermore, that Court remarks indicate a degree of concern in relation to deliberately obstructing disclosure can also be publicly discussed "without fear of legal threats" (Amber Heard, Twitter, March 2021). Therefore, under the law of England and Wales (both at common law and under the Defamation Act 2013, s(3)(1) to 4(a), (b), defences), it is neither slander nor libel to say or publish statements concerning these findings of fact by the Court of Appeal. Comments such as "Amber Heard is a husband beater", "Amber Heard is a spouse beater", "Amber Heard is a man beater", "Amber Heard beat Johnny Depp", "Amber Heard lied to the court about donating $7m to charity", "Amber Heard lied to the public and press that she donated $7m to charity", "Amber Heard may have obstructed disclosure", and so on, or any reasonable articulation thereof, is not defamation for the purposes of the law. As the Court of Appeal, along with the Court of Session (Scotland), is the second highest authority in the United Kingdom, its decisions and articulations displace those of the trial judge, and may be considered persuasive in other jurisdictions both within and outside of the common law world.

I'm glad you mentioned Amber Heard because I've noticed really ugly headlines about her from very obscure websites and felt there was also a coordinated campaign against her as well. Thanks for the work you're doing.

Doesnt need any campaign she is enough to be hated

What kind of person can say lies about donation to cancer children for her own gain for many years for many interviews with ZERO DOLLAR DONATION?

Please research her !

This is true. She really doesn't need smear campaigns ppl hate her because of what she's done n who she is. She is a Liar, abuser and a golddigger.

I haven't seen any of those websites, I don't like her because of all the evidence that disproves her made up story.

As a creator I would prefer to have the control to show or hide the dislike button on a video by video basis. We can turn comments on and off. So why can't we do this with the dislike button.

I'm sorry, but what are these "targeted dislike attacks" you're talking about? Mass dislikes happen on videos that get bad reception, that's how it works. There's no attacks happening. Hiding it is just babying channels that can't handle any kind of criticism.

This is a bad move. The number of dislikes was a useful tool when looking at tutorials, technical help, DIYs, and any other kind of similar content. Now you've taken that tool away, and it'll be harder to weed out the bad advice.

Why not just give the option for a creator to hide it for themselves? Mass amounts of people can still choose to dislike something even targeted, hiding the number doesn't change that
- Tristanius Julius @AryanEuropa · Nov 12, 2021

You are damaging the community more by hiding dislikes. The dislike counter is there to provide a quick and effective metric of the community's sentiment about a video. This often quickly vets scam and irrelevant videos.
- treeseNG @treese_ · Nov 10, 2021

I feel like this just unnecessarily removes important information from viewers. The like-dislike ratio has always been used as a measurement of a video's quality going in so taking away the dislikes makes it impossible to give users a warning if a video is bad without watching it
- andy @xgLOWbal · Nov 12, 2021

That's just a moronic decision.
Likes are pointless without dislikes.
The creator wants to know what his fan base likes and dislikes. You're expecting to get that through comments but you still haven't figured out how to filter the bots out
- m4xfps @m4xfps · Nov 11, 2021

this is the worst decision in YEARS 😢 now you cant filter trash, clickbait or bad videos anymore. its important for things like technical videos. for example ~1h conference talks or tutorials. and for game trailers its great to see how well or bad it is received.

They declined to grant his appeal so it didn't interfere with the va case and the Australian investigation. That's why you can legally call her an abuser in England. The courts said there was enough evidence to prove she was despite not wanting to grant his appeal.

UK courts and a VA judge both came out and said Johnny Depp didn't get a fair trial from nicols. She also didn't present any evidence in the UK champ...she did nothing but testify which justice took at her word based on money. Turned out she lied about that too.
